

To make a reservation for a 30-foot boat on any fleet cruise, you must have passed tests for both Basic Sailing and Coastal Navigation (see the Sailing Instruction pages of the web site).

For Catalina trips, we strongly recommend, but do not require, Cruising Catalina Island.

Wine Fest at Two Harbors Fleet Cruise - June 5-7

This trip to Catalina's Isthmus is perfect for when moorings are plentiful, days are long, and crowds are still down. You'll visit Catalina's wild West End country, and the outpost of civilization there. Plan on a great barbecue on Saturday night on the beach, some good hiking, snorkeling, or just lazing around, and a great trip both ways across the ocean. You can reserve a boat as early as April 1, if you are fully qualified.

Two Days in Oceanside - June 27-28

Santa Barbara Island and Catalina's Wilderness - August 6-10

A 4-day cruising adventure to the isolated gem of the Channel Islands, Santa Barbara Island! On the first night, you'll anchor at Cabrillo Beach on Catalina to enjoy a pot-luck supper, and get your anchorage skills down. When, next day, it's on to Santa Barbara Island, about 20 miles west of Catalina's west end! Explore this 1-square-mile jewel that you (and the National Park Service) own. You'll come back spending Saturday night at Catalina Harbor on the "Hawaii side" of Two Harbors, Catalina, then around the East End. A truly exotic voyage for those brave enough!

Buccaneer Days at Two Harbors- October 1-4

Join the fleet at Two Harbors, Catalina, for a party second only to Aventura's Luau in July.

Come in pirate garb, practice the one-letter pirate alphabet (Rrrrrr!) and enjoy a crazy good time. With moorings at a premium this weekend, we strongly recommend a 4-day trip: Leave Thursday, join your fleet for an on-shore barbecue Friday night, be a Buccaneer on Saturday, and sail back Sunday. There's plenty of time to explore the west end of the island in the best sailing month of the year.

Reserve as early as July 1 for this trip if you are fully qualified - and you will want to be!
